

AMANDA

Cohen

OG GenX comedy!
She's the voice of a generation no one wants to hear from, and audiences of all ages love her. She can be clean enough for a church, hot enough for a bar, and smart enough for public radio. Amanda will challenge your assumptions about women of a certain age with her darkly intelligent humor.

Amanda is ideal for (but hardly limited to) educated,
mature, progressive-leaning audiences.

FEARLESS PERSONAL COMEDY

Bio

Amanda started doing comedy in high school in her hometown in Western Mass. She went to college in Pittsburgh and continued doing standup and writing about comedy for local newspapers. Around the turn of the century she moved to Chicago to study improv and sketchwriting at the Second City Conservatory. She's now based in LA and travels all over the country.

"We are a diverse, highly-educated community and wanted an adult-centered comedy show for our Pride event. Amanda went above and beyond to deliver incisive comedy that had so many laughs! More than one resident said they'd never laughed so much. We were thrilled and would be happy to work with them again."
